Facts And Circumstances Test

Over the years, Insaan has explored crowdfunding in the US and globally, and it maintains a consistent engagement with the public through its social media presence which includes not only the promotion of its own activities, but the dissemination of thought pieces on high-impact philanthropy and evidence of its impact on-the-ground. However, because of the high cost of fund-raising from a broad base (i.e. high marketing costs which are generally not covered by donors), Insaan's strategy is to continue to engage with larger public institutions including foundations and philanthropists to raise larger long-term commitments. Governmental funding in international development is a limited option given a global emphasis on local funding and a very specific set of requirements which generally exclude intermediaries. Insaan's governance structure ensures that Insaan's work serves the interests of those benefiting from philanthropy (i.e. the end-users) as well as the public at large, including public foundations. For instance, its platform, Impact Footprint, is designed to showcase innovations of local solutions to meet the UN Sustainable Development Goals for the benefit of all stakeholders. As an ecosystem innovation, Impact Footprint exists to accelerate the financing of philanthropic funding at scale to benefit the 3 billion people living in low-income communities. In addition, Insaan contributes thought leadership pieces and podcasts, engaging in discussions around innovations and impact in philanthropy, thereby amplifying its resonance in the public domain.
