Together, communities of color and their white working class neighbors ran local campaigns on issues of justice and equality. PA United worked to secure an equitable recovery from the Pandemic, including vaccination equity, emergency rental assistance, eviction protections, hazard and unemployment pay, and more. Across our chapters we focused on membership and leadership development and worked tirelessly for affordable healthcare, union jobs, and fully funding our public schools. This year, and every year, PA United fights for a Pennsylvania that benefits all people, not just a few.

By connecting issues and politics, as well as a theory of change deeply rooted in coalition and relationship, we are building our movement. This work has resulted in member-led chapters in key counties in Western PA, where we are building a multi-racial, poor and working class movement for long-term change. We believe that by bringing together organizations and individuals that share the value of placing people over profit, we are creating powerful permanent coalitions
