OUR MISSION

Legal identification is the essential tool that empowers individuals to better their own lives. It is often required to access:

Yet it is estimated that more than 25 million adult U.S. citizens do not possess valid government-issued photo identification.

While the complex legal requirements to obtain identification are necessary, they create barriers that can be insurmountable for individuals to overcome on their own, especially those living in poverty or with disabilities.

IDignity solves this problem by being an advocate for each client, bringing together the identification-issuing government agencies, providing legal representation and covering the expense of the process.

33% have been without their ID for more than a year.
